ABSTRACT

Medicaid is the key source of health insurance for those who would otherwise have to rely solely on emergency rooms and public health clinics for services. This report provides an overview of Medicaid programs and the newly enacted Children's Health Insurance Program (CHIP), and outlines the implications of key program provisions for professional counselors and consumers. A state-by-state chart indicates if Medicaid fee-for-service direct reimbursement is provided for professional counselors, psychologists, and clinical social workers. The chart also provides contact information for the offices in all 50 states that handle Medicaid. Summaries of waiver programs that affect the delivery of mental health and substance abuse services are included for all 50 states. A second chart lists state CHIP program contacts, recent actions, and anticipated funding for all 50 states. (MKA)

Introduction

A number of different sources of information helped make this report possible, and are listed at the end of each major section. The details and permutations of the program cannot be described succinctly in any one document; this report simply attempts to provide an overview of the program and the way it works, and the major policy issues involved in the way it is structured.

This report is an update of a report released last year. As it will again be updated, comments, corrections, and suggestion are welcomed. Please contact ACA at 800 347-6647 x234, or via e-mail at "sbarstow@counseling.org" with any feedback you may have.

Given the swiftness with which states are changing their programs and developing new ones, much of the information in this report unfortunately may become outdated rather quickly. For the most up-to-date description of what's happening in your state, it is important to contact your state's Medicaid department directly.

The Medicaid Maze: An Introduction

Medicaid is the major component of our nation's public health safety net, providing health insurance to roughly 40 million low-income Americans. However, the program varies significantly from state to state, as states have considerable authority to shape their Medicaid program as they see fit. As a result of The Balanced Budget Act of 1997 (BBA). Medicaid program changes will occur even more rapidly than before. The new law gives states more leeway in requiring beneficiaries to enroll in managed care programs. Managed care, now the rule rather than the exception in the private health care marketplace, is steadily taking over Medicaid and the other major public health care program, Medicare.

It is important that professional counselors understand Medicaid and the newly-enacted provisions affecting the program, including the children's health insurance block grant program established by the Balanced Budget Act. Medicaid is the key source of health insurance for those who would otherwise have to rely solely on emergency rooms and public health clinics for services. Medicaid can also be a source of reimbursement for professional counselors. Among the provisions affecting Medicaid included in the Balanced Budget Act is a provision which may make Medicaid reimbursement more accessible for some professional counselors. This report provides an overview of the Medicaid program and the newly-enacted Children's Health Insurance Program, and outlines the implications of key program provisions for professional counselors and for consumers.

The Basics of Medicaid

Medicaid, authorized under Title XIX of the Social Security Act is a joint federal and state entitlement program which provides health care coverage for more than 40 million low-income individuals nationwide — low-income children and families, pregnant women, the elderly, the blind, and persons with disabilities. Federal funding pays anywhere from 50% to 80% of each state's Medicaid's costs, depending upon the state's average per capita income. In general, the more money a state spends on its program, the more federal money is contributed. In order to participate in the Medicaid program and receive federal funding, states must agree to cover certain population groups and to provide certain mandated services.

States can also cover other, optional groups and services, with federal funding assistance. So long as States cover mandated groups and services, the federal government gives states broad discretion to customize their Medicaid programs. For example, states are able to:

- determine the amount and duration of services offered under their Medicaid programs;
- establish provider payment rates (which are notoriously low);
- place appropriate limits on services based upon such criteria as medical necessity.

Due to these factors—and to the establishment by states of "waiver" programs, discussed below—Medicaid programs vary dramatically from state to state.

Earlier this year Congress passed and the President signed into law legislation—the Balanced Budget Act of 1997, Public Law 105-33—which gives states expanded authority to set up managed care plans for their Medicaid beneficiaries. Previously under Medicaid law, beneficiares could be given the option of enrolling in managed care plans, but could not be required to do so. However, states were allowed to submit applications for waivers of certain federal program requirements, including the requirement that enrollees be given the freedom to choose their health care provider.

These waiver programs—some of which have been in operation for over two decades—typically have been used to require certain Medicaid beneficiaries to enroll in managed care plans. Although almost all states are currently operating waiver programs, it is expected that the new managed care program options made available to states under BBA will begin to be used instead. According to the federal Health Care Financing Administration, as of June 30, 1995 approximately one-third of all Medicaid beneficiaries were being served by managed care programs of various types. Even before BBA was enacted, enrollment in Medicaid managed care plans increased more than 170% between January 1, 1993 and January of 1997. In addition to giving states more flexibility to establish Medicaid managed care programs, BBA also creates the Children's Health Assistance Program (CHIP). This program is designed to help expand insurance coverage among the nation's children, and will be coordinated with states' Medicaid programs.

Federally-Mandated Coverage Under Medicaid

Due to the mixture of extensive federal and state laws, as well as private contracting, Medicaid is a complicated program. However, it is also a vitally-important safety net of care: during the period between 1988 and 1994, the percentage of Americans covered by employer-sponsored health insurance fell from 67% to about 61%; during this same period, Medicaid coverage increased from 9% to 13% of the population. For those populations who are entitled to coverage by their state under federal law, Medicaid can be a life-saver.

Unfortunately, less than half of all Americans living in poverty are insured by Medicaid. Medicaid is typically available only to members of low-income families with children and pregnant women, and to individuals who are over age 65 or who have a disability. Persons not falling into one of these categories, such as childless couples and single adults, cannot qualify, regardless of the amount of their income.

Covered Populations

In general, states are required to provide Medicaid coverage for the following population groups:

• all persons who would have received cash assistance under the Aid to Families with Dependent Children program (AFDC);

Under the Personal Responsibility and Work Opportunity Reconciliation Act of 1996 (PRWORA), AFDC was abolished, and replaced with "block grants for temporary assistance for needy families", or TANF. However, under the welfare reform law, states are required to use the old AFDC eligibility, income, and resource rules which they had in place as of July 16, 1996 for purposes of determining individuals' eligibility for Medicaid coverage. As of 1992, the median state income limit for receiving AFDC benefits was 38% of the federal poverty level for a family of three.

This provision of the welfare reform bill protects millions of beneficiaries who are currently covered by Medicaid. However, families and individuals who receive assistance under the new TANF block grant program operated by their state, but who would not be eligible for AFDC benefits under the old program rules, are not automatically eligible for Medicaid.

• pregnant women and children below age 6 with family incomes below 133% of the federal poverty level, and children born after September 30, 1983 in families whose income is below 100% of the federal poverty level;

For pregnant women, states are only required to cover services related to the pregnancy or complications of the pregnancy.

• low-income persons who are age 65 or older, and individuals who are blind or who have another disability receiving Supplemental Security Income (SSI) payments;

Eligibility for SSI is determined under federal disability standards. Twelve states which had in place slightly more restrictive eligibility standards than the federal SSI rules have been allowed to continue to use them. These states are California, Hawaii, Illinois, Indiana, Minnesota, Missouri, New Hampshire, North Carolina, North Dakota, Ohio, Oklahoma, and Virginia.

Medicare beneficiaries;

States are required to pay Medicare Part B premiums, coinsurance, and deductible amounts for aged and disabled Medicare beneficiaries whose income is below 120% of the federal poverty level.

The above-listed individuals are entitled, by federal law, to coverage by their state's Medicaid program, and individuals who are inappropriately denied care by their state have the right to bring suit against that state in federal court. This individual entitlement to care is one of the program's great strengths, ensuring that politically weak populations cannot be ignored by states attempting to cut corners on their health care assistance programs.

Covered Services

Except for qualified Medicare beneficiaries, states must cover the following services for the above "categorically needy" individuals:

- inpatient and outpatient hospital services;
- physicians' services, including those of psychiatrists;
- medical and surgical dental services;
- ♦ laboratory and X-ray services;
- early and periodic screening, diagnostic, and treatment (EPSDT) services for individuals under age 21;
- family planning services;
- nursing facility services for individuals over the age of 21;
- ♦ home health services for any individual entitled to nursing facility care;
- rural health clinic and federally qualified health center services; and
- services of nurse-midwives, pediatric nurse practitioners, and family nurse practitioners.

Under the EPSDT requirement, states must cover any follow-up services indicated for a child as a result of screening or diagnosis. This requirement provides coverage for services for children which is frequently more generous than coverage for adults, including mental health and substance abuse services which otherwise would not be covered. EPSDT coverage is one of the most important pillars of the Medicaid program, and child health advocates zealously guard against attempts to eliminate the requirement or water it down.

Under the Personal Responsibility and Work Opportunity Reconciliation Act of 1996 (PRWORA), Medicaid eligibility rules were changed for two categories of individuals:

- Children with disabilities. Under PRWORA, a child shall be considered to have a disability if he or she has a "medically determinable physical or mental impairment, which results in marked and severe functional limitations, and which can be expected to result in death or which has lasted or can be expected to last for a continuous period of not less than 12 months." The bill also eliminates the use of individualized functional assessments (IFAs) for purposes of determining eligibility. The changes have made it more difficult for children with mental and emotional disorders to qualify for the Supplemental Security Income (SSI) program, and thus for Medicaid. According to the Congressional Budget Office (CBO), it is estimated that of the 300,000 or more children who will lose their SSI eligibility over the next few years, approximately 40,000-50,000 of them will also lose their eligibility for Medicaid.
- Individuals with substance abuse disorders. Prior to enactment of PRWORA, SSI recognized drug abuse or alcoholism as a disabling condition. Individuals qualifying for SSI on this basis were required to be in substance abuse treatment, and could have their benefits suspended for failure to be in treatment. In addition, benefits were paid not to the individual, but to a "representative payee," a responsible person or agency charged with ensuring that the individual spent their benefits on allowed items such as treatment or food.

The Medicaid Maze
American Counseling Association — December 1997

Under PRWORA, SSI and Social Security Disability Income (SSDI) benefits were terminated for all individuals for whom alcoholism or drug addiction was a contributing factor material to their disability. This has resulted in the loss of eligibility for SSI/SSDI benefits—and consequently the loss of Medicaid coverage—for those individuals with substance abuse disorders who do not have other disabilities. In addition, since alcoholism and drug abuse disorders are no longer considered a covered disability, the representative payee structure for individuals with these disorders has been eliminated.

Other Federal Requirements

In addition to covering the above-listed services for the specified populations, state Medicaid programs must meet the following basic requirements in designing their benefit packages:

- Covered services must be sufficient in amount, duration, and scope to reasonably achieve their treatment purpose. States cannot arbitrarily deny or reduce coverage solely on the basis of the type of illness or condition being treated. States are allowed to limit services to those that are medically necessary.
- Services must generally be equal in amount, duration, and scope to those available to other program beneficiaries in the state.
- Services must be available on a statewide basis.
- Beneficiaries must be free to obtain services from any institution, agency, pharmacy, person, or organization that undertakes to provide the services, is covered by the state's program, and is determined by the state to be qualified to perform the services.

As has been mentioned, Medicaid law allows states to apply for waivers of these requirements. Typically, states request waivers for their Medicaid programs in order to require beneficiaries to enroll in managed care plans. However, the Balanced Budget Act of 1997 makes it much easier for states to set up mandatory managed care plans. As a result of both existing waiver programs and the new authority granted by the Balanced Budget Act, within the next few years managed care is likely to become the rule rather than the exception for Medicaid beneficiaries.

State-Determined Optional Coverage

States can expand their coverage beyond the minimum mandatory populations and services, and receive federal funding in doing so. States are permitted to expand coverage—using federal matching funds—to pregnant women and infants under 1 year old with incomes between 133% and 185% of the federal poverty level. States are also permitted to provide Medicaid to individuals who do not receive SSI but who are receiving state-provided supplementary cash subsistence payments.

Most states also opt to provide coverage for "medically needy" individuals, who meet the nonfinancial standards for inclusion in one of the categories listed above, but whose income or resources are too high. Individuals are allowed to "spend down" to their state's medically needy resource levels in the process of incurring health care costs, at which point they can become eligible for Medicaid.

In addition, states may provide coverage for any of a broad range of optional services, with federal support. Among these optional services are:

- prescription drugs
- dental and optical services
- clinic services
- physical therapy
- occupational therapy
- prosthetic devices

- care provided in institutional care facilities for the mentally retarded
- chiropractors' services
- hospice services
- Christian Science care
- other practitioners' services.

The federal government only requires that states cover the services of physicians. Thus, any coverage of non-physician providers, including professional counselors, clinical social workers, and psychologists, is done solely at the state's option.

Medicaid Coverage of Mental Health Services

Medicaid is an important source of funding for the treatment of mental disorders, paying for roughly 20% of the nation's mental health care costs. Individuals do not have to meet separate eligibility criteria in order to receive mental health services; most Medicaid beneficiaries receiving mental health services have qualified for coverage upon becoming eligible for SSI benefits (due to having a disabling mental disorder), or after spending enough of their own money for mental health care that they qualify for their state's "medically needy" coverage. Medicaid's EPSDT requirement is an important source of coverage for needed mental health services for children.

Inpatient Mental Health Care

As noted above, state Medicaid programs are required to cover inpatient and outpatient services provided in general hospitals. States may choose to provide indirect reimbursement for licensed or certified professional counselors' services in hospital settings.

State Medicaid programs operate under strict guidelines regarding coverage of inpatient mental health care. States are generally not allowed to use Medicaid to pay for care provided in psychiatric hospitals (defined as "institutions for mental disease" or IMDs: facilities having more than 16 beds which are primarily for the care and treatment of individuals with mental disorders). This prohibition is an attempt by the federal government to avoid picking up the costs of operating public mental hospitals, which have traditionally been funded and run by states.

States do have the option of using Medicaid to pay for care provided in inpatient psychiatric hospitals to persons under the age of 22, and to cover inpatient hospital or nursing facility care for persons over the age of 64. In fact, Medicaid is a significant payor of nursing home costs. For those between the ages of 21 and 65, inpatient mental health care can only be provided in general hospitals or in facilities with fewer than 16 beds. Consequently, many states have established small (fewer than 16 beds) community-based facilities—often associated with a general hospital—to care for individuals with mental illnesses using Medicaid funds. Again, states may choose to cover professional counselors' services provided in these facilities.

Outpatient Care and Reimbursement of Non-Physician Providers

In most states, Medicaid beneficiaries receive mental health services from psychiatrists under the same rules that apply when they obtain services from physicians in other specialties. However, states may also cover mental health services provided by non-physicians—including psychologists, social workers, professional counselors, psychiatric nurses, and psychology assistants—and can reimburse these practitioners directly.

Non-physician mental health care providers can also be reimbursed indirectly when providing care under a psychiatrist or other physician's supervision through a clinic, physician's office, or group practice. When working under the direct supervision of a psychiatrist, the psychiatrist typically must be immediately available to provide assistance and direction throughout the time the non-physician is performing services. Direct supervision does not mean the psychiatrist is present in the same room while the non-physician is providing services.

The majority of states do not provide direct reimbursement to professional counselors for mental health services provided to Medicaid beneficiaries in fee-for-service settings. However, if the counselor is employed by an approved mental health clinic, hospital, or state agency that contracts with the Medicaid agency for mental health services, his or her services are indirectly reimbursable.

According to an ACA survey conducted in 1996 (and updated with recent information provided by ACA branch leaders), Medicaid reimbursement for fee-for-service program beneficiaries breaks down as follows:

- ◆ 42 states directly reimburse clinical psychologists;
- 17 states directly reimburse clinical social workers;
- ◆ 13 states directly reimburse professional counselors, including California, Maine, Mississippi, Missouri, Montana, New Hampshire, North Carolina, Oregon, Rhode Island, South Carolina, South Dakota, Texas, and Virginia.

In some cases, non-physician mental health providers are reimbursed only under the EPSDT portion of the state's program.

Waiver Programs and The Balanced Budget Act of 1997

The structure and extent of the public health safety net has changed considerably over the past year and a half. The Balanced Budget Act contains provisions which have fundamentally altered both the Medicaid and Medicare programs. In both cases, the restructuring was done in order to increase beneficiaries' enrollment in managed care plans.

Medicaid managed care plans can be categorized as one of three types:

- Primary Care Case Management (PCCM). Under a PCCM program, a Medicaid beneficiary selects or is assigned to a single primary care provider, which provides or arranges for all covered services. The primary care provider is reimbursed on a fee-for-service basis in addition to receiving a small monthly "management" fee.
- Fully capitated HMOs and Health Insuring Organizations (HIOs). Fully capitated plans contract with the state agency to provide beneficiaries with a comprehensive set of covered services in return for a flat monthly capitation payment.
- Partially capitated Pre-Paid Health plans (PHPs). Partially capitated plans provide a less than comprehensive set of services on a risk basis; services not included in the contract are reimbursed on a fee-for-service basis.

The Old Waiver System

Prior to this year, states would submit formal applications in order to obtain permission to change the structure of their Medicaid program. Usually, this has been done in order to require beneficiaries to enroll in managed care plans (establishing voluntary enrollment in managed care plans does not require a waiver). Most states operate waiver programs, and it is estimated that each month more than 60,000 beneficiaries are moved into a Medicaid managed care program. Under Sections 1915 and 1115 of the Medicaid statute, states may ask the Health Care Financing Administration (HCFA) for waivers of certain Medicaid requirements (see "Other Federal Requirements" above). There are two basic types of Medicaid waivers: demonstration waivers and program waivers.

Demonstration Waivers

Demonstration waivers, authorized under Section 1115(a) of the Social Security Act, are quite broad and permit states to experiment with their Medicaid programs in several areas. Under these demonstration projects (known as "eleven-fifteen waivers"), states may cover new services, test new reimbursement methods, change Medicaid eligibility criteria, or contract with a variety of managed care organizations. However, states are not given unlimited freedom: states cannot waive services for pregnant women and children, and they must maintain appropriate levels of access to and quality of care. Section 1115 waivers can be granted for up to 5 years.

Program Waivers

While not as far-reaching as 1115 waivers, program waivers—authorized under Sections 1915(b) and 1915(c) of the Social Security Act—permit states to operate certain types of special programs on an ongoing basis. The two primary types of program waivers being used by states are freedom-of-choice waivers and home and community-based care waivers.

- Freedom-of-Choice waivers ("Section 1915(b)" waivers)— These waivers allow states to waive federal Medicaid requirements regarding beneficiaries' freedom of choice of healthcare provider, comparability of services, and program statewideness. Freedom-of-choice waiver programs may require beneficiaries to obtain services from specific providers or managed care organizations with whom the state has entered into a contract. Medicaid recipients are either enrolled in health maintenance organizations (HMOs), health insuring organizations (HIOs), or prepaid health plans (PHPs). These waivers are approved for a 2-year period and may be renewed at 2-year intervals. It is worth noting that states may establish voluntary enrollment in managed care plans without a waiver. A table listing 1915(b) waiver programs which cover mental health services is included in this report.
- Home and Community-Based Care waivers ("Section 1915(c)" waivers)— Under these waivers, states may develop alternatives to institutionalizing Medicaid-eligible individuals, allowing individuals at risk of institutionalization to be cared for at home and in their communities. Beneficiaries can receive case management, homemaker services, home health aide services, personal care services, adult day health treatment, rehabilitation and respite care, and clinic services. Home and community-based care waiver programs serve older Americans and those with disabilities. States conducting such waiver programs must demonstrate that expenditures for individuals receiving home and community-based services will not exceed estimated expenditures had services been provided in an institution.

Home and community-based care waivers may also be configured to serve individuals with a specific condition or illness. Two examples are programs for elderly individuals with disabilities and for children with drug dependence disorders. Almost all states have home and community-based care waiver programs.

The New Waiver System

Under the Balanced Budget Act, states will no longer need to obtain section 1915(b) waivers in order to sidestep federal freedom of choice, comparability, and uniformity requirements. The new law allows states to require beneficiaries to enroll in managed care programs without obtaining a waiver, and instead by filing a plan amendment (a much less detailed and formal process). In addition, the law classifies mandatory enrollment in primary care case management programs ("PCCMs", described below) as an optional service which states may cover. Finally, the "75:25 percent" rule, which required at least 25% of a Medicaid managed care plan's enrollment to consist of individuals not receiving Medicaid or Medicare, is repealed. This requirement had been in place as an indirect means of ensuring plan quality; the expectation was that managed care plans would provide the same quality of service to public enrollees as they did to privately-insured enrollees. Now this requirement is gone. All of these provisions are in effect now, and are expected to make most—if not all—1915(b) waivers obsolete. Section 1115 waivers will still be needed for more far-reaching program restructurings affecting benefits and eligibility criteria.

There are still some roadblocks and requirements in place before states may require all beneficiaries to enroll in managed care plans:

- states must file a plan amendment before making program changes;
- states cannot require children under age 19 with special needs, Medicare-related beneficiaries, or Native Americans to enroll in Medicaid managed care plans without a waiver;
- states must allow beneficiaries (except those in rural areas) to choose from at least two managed care entities;
- states must allow beneficiaries to disenroll from a managed care plan at any time for cause, and to disenroll without cause within the first 90 days of enrollment and at least once a year thereafter. Thus, states can lock enrollees into a managed care plan for up to 12 months;
- upon request, managed care plans must make information available to enrollees and potential enrollees about the plan's providers, enrollee rights, and plan grievance and appeals procedures;
- Medicaid managed care plans may not place "gag rules" on provider-patient communications;
- Medicaid managed care plans must establish internal grievance procedures to allow enrollees to challenge denials of coverage or payment; and
- independent annual reviews of any Medicaid managed care organizations must be conducted, with the results to be made public.

Types of Medicaid Managed Care Plans

While Medicaid managed care programs can take different shapes, they usually fall into one of the following categories:

Health Maintenance Organizations (HMOs): These are public or private entities which contract with the state Medicaid agency to provide a portion of the services covered in the state's Medicaid benefit package. HMOs are usually at some degree of risk: if the payment they receive from the state to cover contracted services falls short of the actual cost of these services, the HMO loses money; if services cost less than the payment amount, the HMO makes a profit. As a consequence of this payment structure, HMOs have no incentive to provide services for which it is not contractually responsible.

Health Insuring Organizations (HIOs): HIOs act as fiscal intermediaries between the State Medicaid agency and health care providers. Like HMOs, HIOs may be responsible for only a portion of the Medicaid benefit package, and typically contract with a State Medicaid agency on a risk basis. Unlike HMOs, HIOs do not deliver care.

Prepaid Health Plans (PHPs): PHPs are similar to HMOs, with the difference that PHPs contract to provide services on a nonrisk basis. Some PHPs contract on a risk basis just like HMOs, and are allowed to do so because they were "grandfathered" into earlier legislation.

Primary Care Case Management Programs (PCCM): The term "PCCM" does not refer to a distinct organization or health care plan, but instead refers to the practice of requiring Medicaid beneficiaries to use a "gatekeeper" provider as a conduit for all needed care. Primary care case managers are usually paid on a fee-for-service basis, and receive a small fee from the state in exchange for managing their patient's care. States with PCCM programs may not pay for a Medicaid beneficiary's health care if it is not first approved by a primary care provider.

Contracts Between States and MCO's

Regardless of whether behavioral health services are "carved-out" or "carved-in" (covered by the same entity responsible for all other health care services), the details of provider paneling and eligibility are negotiated between either the state and the managed care plan(s) or the managed care plan and the subcontracting managed behavioral healthcare organization in the course of arriving at a contract. Professional counselors are encouraged to contact their state Medicaid agencies to advocate for the inclusion of professional counselors' services under their Medicaid plans, and to allow Medicaid managed care plans to contract with professional counselors and other non-physician practitioners for the provision of services to Medicaid beneficiaries.

It is important to stress that the strength, breadth, and level of detail of state Medicaid contracts with managed care entities vary considerably. Most Medicaid-managed care contracts cover only a portion of enrollees' benefits, and leave the state Medicaid agency responsible for all other services. In addition to the set of services assigned to the managed care contractor, state Medicaid contracts vary in their degree of specificity regarding coverage of particular services, and in the guidance given plans regarding coverage determinations, including decisions on the "medical necessity" of services. Since courts usually interpret ambiguities in contracts against the party who drafted the contract, poorly-worded or insufficiently explicit contracts with managed care entities may result in the state Medicaid agency being responsible for services or populations which "fall through the cracks" in the contract. Managed care organizations usually have the ability to terminate contracts at will, and at any time, which can make it difficult for state agencies to challenge managed care plans' actions. As a result of these factors, Medicaid contracts between states and managed care organizations often favor the managed care organizations.

In any contractual tug-of-war between managed care organizations and providers, the managed care organization almost always wins. This is due to a number of characteristics usually encountered in plan-provider contracts:

• Contracts may result in providers being placed at significant financial risk, due primarily to low reimbursement rates;

- Contracts may make providers responsible for all necessary treatment provided to an enrollee after either the enrollee or the provider is terminated by the plan;
- Providers may be made responsible for collecting payments from third-party insurers when they are deemed liable, and may be required to seek out and collect from any other forms of insurance the client may have, prior to billing the managed care plan;
- Contracts usually make it the provider's duty to see all patients referred to them by the managed care organization, making it difficult or even impossible for a provider to refuse to see a plan patient.

Professional counselors should enter into all contracts with managed care organizations carefully. Ideally, professional counselors should have such contracts reviewed by an attorney prior to signing on the dotted line.

Non-discrimination Against Providers

Of perhaps the most importance to professional counselors, the Balanced Budget Act contains a provision prohibiting Medicaid managed care plans from discriminating against any provider with respect to plan participation, reimbursement, or indemnification solely on the basis of that provider's license or certification. The provision states that this shall not be contrued "...to prohibit an organization from including providers only to the extent necessary to meet the needs of the organization's enrollees or from establishing any measure designed to maintain quality and control costs consistent with the responsibilities of the organization." In other words, if a State licenses or certifies a health profession, Medicaid managed care plans may not exclude all such health professionals based on their type of licensure or certification. Plans are not required, however, to contract with all providers in the state.

While this provision applies to both future and current Medicaid managed care plans, it does not apply to primary care case management (PCCM) programs. The legislation does not discuss standards under which managed care organizations would demonstrate that providers are not necessary; regulations in this area will be issued by HCFA.

Because states will only have to submit plan amendments, instead of formal waiver applications, in order to establish managed care plans, professional counselors and other provider and consumer advocates will need to pay close attention to how their states implement such programs. The waiver application process has provided advocates with valuable opportunities to provide input on plan configuration. The plan amendment process, however, is much less rigorous. It appears that twenty-seven states never filed a state plan amendment describing changes brought about by last year's welfare law. Unlike section 1915 or 1115 waiver applications, state Medicaid plan amendments can be approved retroactively, and although states may risk losing federal money if their amendment is ultimately disapproved, this has rarely occurred. According to an analysis by the National Health Law Program, "Clearly, the state plan amendment process is not currently allowing for consumer participation or public information. Much work is needed to help advocates use the process and work with state and HCFA officials to maximize the consumer role during it."

Mental Health Carve-Outs

Currently, roughly half of the states either have established or are pursuing waivers to allow them to set up mental health "carve-outs" within their Medicaid programs. Under these carve-out arrangements, a private managed behavioral health care firm is contracted with to provide a specific set of services to a defined population. Thus, these benefits are "carved out of" the overall benefit package, and handed over to an entity separate from the Medicaid department.

Carve-outs also frequently occur within a managed care organization's benefit package. Managed care organization "A" may have a contract with the state agency to provide all covered services to Medicaid beneficiaries in a specific area. The organization may decide to carve-out the behavioral health benefit by subcontracting with managed behavioral healthcare organization "B" to provide all mental health and substance abuse services to these Medicaid beneficiaries, under the same terms and conditions as were agreed to between managed care organization "A" and the state Medicaid agency. Thus, Medicaid beneficiaries in this area would receive general medical services from managed care organization "A", but would receive all behavioral health (mental health and substance abuse treatment) services through managed behavioral healthcare organization "B".

The Child Health Insurance Program (CHIP)

Established within the same Balanced Budget Act as the new Medicaid provisions, the Child Health Assistance Program (CHIP) seeks to reduce the number of uninsured children in the country. recently pegged at over 10 million. Although similar to Medicaid, CHIP gives states much more freedom to determine how they want to use their share of the $20.25 billion in federal money to be spent on the program over the next five years. A chart listing the number of uninsured children in each state and the amount of funding the state will receive under the program follows.

The program is targeted at children in families with incomes under 200% of poverty (defined as roughly $32,100 in annual income for the average family of four), and is projected to help provide insurance to roughly two million uninsured children who are not now eligible for Medicaid. States cannot use their new CHIP money to pay for coverage of children currently covered by their Medicaid program; states' eligibility rules for Medicaid in effect on June 1, 1997 cannot be lowered.

States have three options for using their CHIP funds. They can use the money to:

- Expand their Medicaid program. If a state chooses to use some or all of their funds to expand their current Medicaid program, the proportion of the cost of care the federal government will pay is higher than in the regular Medicaid program;
- Purchase insurance policies.
- Purchase services directly, such as from a community program. States may not use more than 10% of their funds to pay for their administrative costs, outreach efforts, and the direct purchase of services. States are required to spend at least 90% of CHIP funds on Medicaid expansion and/or the purchase of insurance coverage.

American Counseling Association — December 1997

The Medicaid Maze

Benefit Packages

For states choosing to purchase health insurance for uninsured children, the benefit package for the policy must be equivalent to one of three benchmark packages:

- the federal employees' standard Blue Cross-Blue Shield preferred provider option;
- a plan offered to state employees; or
- the plan offered by the HMO in the state that has the largest commercial (non-Medicaid) enrolled population.

The state may either purchase a plan with the same services covered in one of the three options above, or it may purchase a different benefit package which is "actuarially equivalent" to one of the three benchmark plans. If a state chooses to buy an "actuarially equivalent" package, the actuarial value of the mental health services covered in the package must be at least 75% of the actuarial value of the benchmark plan's mental health services. While this falls short of an explicit requirement that health benefits packages include mental health coverage, the anticipated effect of the 75% requirement will be to ensure at least minimal mental health coverage for children. Obviously, the effect of the law's "75% of the actuarial value" floor will vary greatly depending on the plan the state chooses to base its program on.

None of the benefit package rules apply in the states of New York, Florida, and Pennsylvania. These three states lobbied successfully to be allowed to continue offering the benefits furnished through their current programs for uninsured children.

Other Requirements

States must meet a number of requirements in order to receive funds:

- States must maintain their current Medicaid program eligibility standards;
- Eligibility standards for CHIP programs cannot be based on a child's diagnosis or health status, and no health plan under this program may deny eligibility to a child because of a pre-existing condition;
- before being enrolled in a CHIP plan, children must be screened for Medicaid eligibility. Only children who are not already eligible for Medicaid can be covered through a health insurance policy purchased with CHIP funds; and
- States must ensure that insurance coverage provided through this program does not substitute for employer-sponsored coverage.

States can begin to receive funds on October 1, 1997, and have until September 30, 1998 to apply for first-year funds. States may carry over unused grant funds from one year into the succeeding two fiscal years. Funds will not be disbursed to a state until the state submits a description of its proposed child health plan, including the state's current health efforts for children, the eligibility criteria to be used in the CHIP program, how outreach to eligible families will be conducted, and how child health block grant funds will be coordinated with Medicaid or other state health initiatives. States are also required to provide an annual report to the federal government, evaluating their program's success in covering uninsured children and its coordination of CHIP with other types of health care coverage.

In those states which have not already decided how to use their CHIP funds, professional counselors and other advocates can play a key role in influencing their state's decisions regarding CHIP programs. Many states are currently in the process of making decisions on how to use their grant money. Especially in states which do not use their CHIP funds to expand their Medicaid program, and which may essentially be creating a brand new benefit package or choosing from a few different packages, professional counselors have the opportunity to influence what services are covered. It is imperative that advocates make clear the importance of giving children access to an adequate array of effective mental health and substance abuse treatment services, and that States cover professional counselors' services. As with Medicaid, States may choose to cover professional counselors' services as part of their CHIP program. Whether or not they do depends largely on the efforts of advocates within the state.

For more information, contact your state's Medicaid agency or department of health programs. A directory of these agencies, including addresses and phone numbers, is included in the table which follows. Also included is a list of state contacts on CHIP programs, and a description of current activity in implementing these programs.

Summaries of Waiver Programs Affecting Delivery of Mental Health and Substance Abuse Services

The following information provides an overview of state Medicaid waivers and how they affect behavioral health service delivery. This includes both section 1915(b) and 1115 waiver programs, but does not include voluntary managed care enrollment programs, nor does it provide a comprehensive overview of proposed waivers that have yet to be approved. Most of the information in this report was obtained through the federal Substance Abuse and Mental Health Services Administration (SAMHSA).

Although all information is as current as possible, waiver programs are extremely sensitive to change through state legislation, individual contract definitions, and implementation changes. Professional counselors are urged to contact their state Medicaid department or department of health programs for the most current information.

ALABAMA

1915(b) waiver program Primary Care Case Management (PCCM) program

Alabama's 1915(b) waiver program is a mandatory primary care case management program, operating statewide. Under the program, all behavioral health services are provided through the standard fee-for-service Medicaid program, following referral from the beneficiary's primary care provider.

1115 waiver program Alabama BAY (Better Access for You)

The BAY Health Plan consists of a managed care system in which all Medicaid beneficiaries (with the exception of foster children and Medicaid/Medicare dual eligibles) in Mobile County are required to enroll. All standard Medicaid benefits for these beneficiaries will be provided through the plan, including mental health services. Mental health services under the program are provided by Mobile Mental Health, a public sector program considered part of the Alabama Department of Mental Health/Mental Retardation.

ALASKA

1915(b) waiver program None

1115 waiver program None 43

ARIZONA

1915(b) waiver program None

1115 waiver program Arizona Healthcare Cost Containment System (AHCCCS)

All Medicaid beneficiaries in the state receive all covered services through a managed care plan under AHCCCS. Arizona's Medicaid department (which is AHCCCS) subcontracts with the Arizona Department of Health Services and its Division of Behavioral Health Services (ADHS/BHS) for the provision of all mental health and substance abuse services to the state's Medicaid beneficiaries. The Department of Health Services in turn contracts with five Regional Behavioral Health Authorities (RBHA's), paying them on a capitated basis for the provision of covered services. For individuals without a serious mental illness between the ages of 18 and 20, AHCCCS contracts with acute care health plans.

ARKANSAS

1915(b) waiver programs

Primary Care Case Management (PCCM) program

Benefit Arkansas, waiver application submitted and
subsequently withdrawn

Arkansas' PCCM waiver is statewide, but covers only inpatient hospital, outpatient hospital services, family planning services, and physician services. All other mental health services are provided under the fee-for-service portion of the Medicaid program. Arkansas does not recognize substance abuse treatment as a Medicaid-covered service.

Arkansas had been developing a mental health and substance abuse treatment carve-out waiver for a program to be known as Benefit Arkansas. The program would have covered all mental health services for children and adolescents under the age of 21. However, the waiver application has been withdrawn, pending a study requested by the Health, Welfare and Labor Committee in the state legislature.

CALIFORNIA

1915(b) waiver programs Medi-Cal, others

Although California's Medi-Cal program, a statewide selective provider contracting system established under a 1915(b) waiver, has been in effect since 1982, the state has numerous other 1915(b) waiver programs affecting the provision of mental health and/or substance abuse services to Medicaid beneficiaries.

Under a 1915(b) waiver for Psychiatric Inpatient Hospital Services (PIHS), all funding for inpatient psychiatric services is consolidated at the local level. The state's Department of Mental Health requires these services to be coordinated through local Mental Health Plans (MHPs); currently, all MHPs are county mental health departments. This configuration does not apply in Santa Barbara, Solano, and San Mateo counties, in which separate 1915(b) waiver programs have been established providing inpatient psychiatric care and specialty mental health services to all Medicaid beneficiaries through a health insuring organization (HIO), paid on a capitated basis. The San Mateo county program also covers outpatient specialty mental health services.

In Sacramento County, a waiver program known as the "Geographic Managed Care Program" has been established which provides outpatient mental health services and referrals to inpatient psychiatric care for all AFDC/TANF and related beneficiaries.

For outpatient mental health services, California has a Primary Care Case Management program waiver. Under this program, California's Department of Health Services (DHS) contracts with primary care physicians, clinics, and organizations for the coverage of outpatient mental health services, psychotropic drugs, and referrals for inpatient general medical and psychiatric care. The waiver program, although approved for statewide implementation, is currently operating in only five counties.

1115 waiver programs

Senior Care Action Network, On Lok, Sutter Senior Care, Center for Elder Independence, Los Angeles County Demonstration

California has four 1115 waiver programs which cover all mental health services for enrollees ages 65 and older: Senior Care Action Network, for enrollees in Long Beach and Los Angeles; On Lok, for enrollees in San Francisco; Sutter Senior Care, for enrollees in Sacramento; and the Center for Elder Independence, in Oakland. Under these programs, the California Department of Health Services contracts with a single HMO on a capitated basis for all covered mental health services.

California also has a waiver program in effect known as the Los Angeles County Demonstration. Under this program, coverage of physical and behavioral services within clinics for both Medicaid and non-Medicaid eligibles is supported.

COLORADO

1915(b) waiver programs Colorado Mental Health Capitation and Managed Care

Program

Colorado Primary Care Physician Program

The Colorado Mental Health Capitation and Managed Care Program is in operation in 51 counties in the state, and covers roughly 70 percent of Colorado's Medicaid population. Colorado plans to expand the program statewide in 1998. Under the program, mental health services are contracted out to seven different Mental Health Assessment and Services Agencies (MHASA), which are paid a capitated amount per enrollee for all mental health services. Covered services include: inpatient care, outpatient services, 24-hour residential care, rehabilitation services, case management, respite care, family preservation services, psychosocial rehabilitation services, and vocational and prevocational services.

Colorado's Primary Care Physician Program for physical health services is statewide, and is mandatory for AFDC/TANF and SSI eligible populations. The program allows individuals to choose between either a primary care physician (who acts as a gatekeeper for any specialty care received) under a fee-for-service reimbursement plan, or to enroll in an HMO.

1115 waiver program None

CONNECTICUT

1915(b) waiver program Connecticut Access

Connecticut Access is a statewide, mandatory-enrollment program for AFDC/TANF eligibles, under which the state Medicaid agency contracts with HMOs to provide services. Behavioral health services are integrated with general health services under the program; health plans may provide behavioral health services themselves, or contract these services out to a managed behavioral healthcare organization.

1115 waiver program None

DELAWARE

1915(b) waiver program None

1115 waiver program Diamond State Health Plan

The Diamond State Health Plan is a statewide managed care enrollment program covering almost all Medicaid beneficiaries, including AFDC/TANF and SSI eligible populations, and low-income adults and children with incomes below 100% of the federal poverty level. The benefit package provided by the program's four contracting managed care plans includes some behavioral health services. The plans are responsible for providing up to 30 mental health and substance abuse outpatient visits for children and youth. All other needed services are provided under the management of the state's Department of Services for Children, Youth, and Their Families, Division of Child Mental Health Services.

For adults, plans must cover 30 inpatient units and 20 outpatient units of mental health/substance abuse services. (Beneficiaries may trade one inpatient unit for two residential units or three outpatient service units.) Adults may receive additional services from the state's Department of Health and Social Services Division of Alcoholism, Drug Abuse and Mental Health, if they are determined by the Department to be severely and persistently ill (SPI).

Summaries of Waiver Programs Affecting Delivery of Mental Health and Substance Abuse Services

The following information provides an overview of state Medicaid waivers and how they affect behavioral health service delivery. This includes both section 1915(b) and 1115 waiver programs, but does not include voluntary managed care enrollment programs, nor does it provide a comprehensive overview of proposed waivers that have yet to be approved. Most of the information in this report was obtained through the federal Substance Abuse and Mental Health Services Administration (SAMHSA).

Although all information is as current as possible, waiver programs are extremely sensitive to change through state legislation, individual contract definitions, and implementation changes. Professional counselors are urged to contact their state Medicaid department or department of health programs for the most current information.

ALABAMA

1915(b) waiver program Primary Care Case Management (PCCM) program

Alabama's 1915(b) waiver program is a mandatory primary care case management program, operating statewide. Under the program, all behavioral health services are provided through the standard fee-for-service Medicaid program, following referral from the beneficiary's primary care provider.

1115 waiver program Alabama BAY (Better Access for You)

The BAY Health Plan consists of a managed care system in which all Medicaid beneficiaries (with the exception of foster children and Medicaid/Medicare dual eligibles) in Mobile County are required to enroll. All standard Medicaid benefits for these beneficiaries will be provided through the plan, including mental health services. Mental health services under the program are provided by Mobile Mental Health, a public sector program considered part of the Alabama Department of Mental Health/Mental Retardation.

1115 waiver program Arizona Healthcare Cost Containment System (AHCCCS)

All Medicaid beneficiaries in the state receive all covered services through a managed care plan under AHCCCS. Arizona's Medicaid department (which is AHCCCS) subcontracts with the Arizona Department of Health Services and its Division of Behavioral Health Services (ADHS/BHS) for the provision of all mental health and substance abuse services to the state's Medicaid beneficiaries. The Department of Health Services in turn contracts with five Regional Behavioral Health Authorities (RBHA's), paying them on a capitated basis for the provision of covered services. For individuals without a serious mental illness between the ages of 18 and 20, AHCCCS contracts with acute care health plans.

ARKANSAS

1915(b) waiver programs Primary Care Case Management (PCCM) program

Benefit Arkansas, waiver application submitted and

subsequently withdrawn

Arkansas' PCCM waiver is statewide, but covers only inpatient hospital, outpatient hospital services, family planning services, and physician services. All other mental health services are provided under the fee-for-service portion of the Medicaid program. Arkansas does not recognize substance abuse treatment as a Medicaid-covered service.

Arkansas had been developing a mental health and substance abuse treatment carve-out waiver for a program to be known as Benefit Arkansas. The program would have covered all mental health services for children and adolescents under the age of 21. However, the waiver application has been withdrawn, pending a study requested by the Health, Welfare and Labor Committee in the state legislature.

CALIFORNIA

1915(b) waiver programs Medi-Cal, others

Although California's Medi-Cal program, a statewide selective provider contracting system established under a 1915(b) waiver, has been in effect since 1982, the state has numerous other 1915(b) waiver programs affecting the provision of mental health and/or substance abuse services to Medicaid beneficiaries.

Under a 1915(b) waiver for Psychiatric Inpatient Hospital Services (PIHS), all funding for inpatient psychiatric services is consolidated at the local level. The state's Department of Mental Health requires these services to be coordinated through local Mental Health Plans (MHPs); currently, all MHPs are county mental health departments. This configuration does not apply in Santa Barbara, Solano, and San Mateo counties, in which separate 1915(b) waiver programs have been established providing inpatient psychiatric care and specialty mental health services to all Medicaid beneficiaries through a health insuring organization (HIO), paid on a capitated basis. The San Mateo county program also covers outpatient specialty mental health services.

In Sacramento County, a waiver program known as the "Geographic Managed Care Program" has been established which provides outpatient mental health services and referrals to inpatient psychiatric care for all AFDC/TANF and related beneficiaries.

For outpatient mental health services, California has a Primary Care Case Management program waiver. Under this program, California's Department of Health Services (DHS) contracts with primary care physicians, clinics, and organizations for the coverage of outpatient mental health services, psychotropic drugs, and referrals for inpatient general medical and psychiatric care. The waiver program, although approved for statewide implementation, is currently operating in only five counties.

1115 waiver programs

Senior Care Action Network, On Lok, Sutter Senior Care, Center for Elder Independence, Los Angeles County Demonstration

California has four 1115 waiver programs which cover all mental health services for enrollees ages 65 and older: Senior Care Action Network, for enrollees in Long Beach and Los Angeles; On Lok, for enrollees in San Francisco; Sutter Senior Care, for enrollees in Sacramento; and the Center for Elder Independence, in Oakland. Under these programs, the California Department of Health Services contracts with a single HMO on a capitated basis for all covered mental health services.

California also has a waiver program in effect known as the Los Angeles County Demonstration. Under this program, coverage of physical and behavioral services within clinics for both Medicaid and non-Medicaid eligibles is supported.

COLORADO

1915(b) waiver programs Colorado Mental Health Capitation and Managed Care

Program

Colorado Primary Care Physician Program

The Colorado Mental Health Capitation and Managed Care Program is in operation in 51 counties in the state, and covers roughly 70 percent of Colorado's Medicaid population. Colorado plans to expand the program statewide in 1998. Under the program, mental health services are contracted out to seven different Mental Health Assessment and Services Agencies (MHASA), which are paid a capitated amount per enrollee for all mental health services. Covered services include: inpatient care, outpatient services, 24-hour residential care, rehabilitation services, case management, respite care, family preservation services, psychosocial rehabilitation services, and vocational and prevocational services.

Colorado's Primary Care Physician Program for physical health services is statewide, and is mandatory for AFDC/TANF and SSI eligible populations. The program allows individuals to choose between either a primary care physician (who acts as a gatekeeper for any specialty care received) under a fee-for-service reimbursement plan, or to enroll in an HMO.

CONNECTICUT

1915(b) waiver program Connecticut Access

Connecticut Access is a statewide, mandatory-enrollment program for AFDC/TANF eligibles, under which the state Medicaid agency contracts with HMOs to provide services. Behavioral health services are integrated with general health services under the program; health plans may provide behavioral health services themselves, or contract these services out to a managed behavioral healthcare organization.

1115 waiver program Diamond State Health Plan

The Diamond State Health Plan is a statewide managed care enrollment program covering almost all Medicaid beneficiaries, including AFDC/TANF and SSI eligible populations, and low-income adults and children with incomes below 100% of the federal poverty level. The benefit package provided by the program's four contracting managed care plans includes some behavioral health services. The plans are responsible for providing up to 30 mental health and substance abuse outpatient visits for children and youth. Adults may receive additional services from the state's Department of Health and Social Services Division of Alcoholism, Drug Abuse and Mental Health, if they are determined by the Department to be severely and persistently ill (SPI).

District of Columbia

1915(b) waiver programs Primary Care Case Management (PCCM)

The PCCM program applies to all AFDC/TANF-related enrollees in the District. Under the program, approximately half of the AFDC/TANF population is enrolled in one of six HMO's contracting with the District. The rest of this population receives services through a primary care case manager. Behavioral health services—defined as any medically necessary services provided through a clinic, hospital, or physician—are covered under the plan. At a future date, the District plans to modify this waiver so that all AFDC/TANF and related populations are enrolled in a managed care plan in which all behavioral health services are provided under a separate, fee-for-service program.

1115 waiver program Managed Care System for Disabled Children and Youth with Special Needs

This program covers all services, including mental health and substance abuse services, for children and youth below the age of 22 who have a disability and are receiving SSI benefits. The District's Medicaid agency makes capitation payments to the organization Health Services for Children with Special Needs (HSCSN), which is responsible for all needed services.

FLORIDA

1915(b) waiver program Florida Prepaid Mental Health Plan (PMHP)

Florida has a statewide mandatory PCCM (primary care case management) enrollment program for all AFDC/TANF and SSI beneficiaries, known as Medipass. However, this program does not include behavioral health services.

The Florida Prepaid Mental Health Plan provides mental health services to Medipass enrollees in the five-county Tampa Bay area. Under the program, the state contracts with the Florida Health Partnership (FHP)—a coalition of private managed care organizations and community mental health centers—to provide all covered services, including inpatient and outpatient care, targeted case management for the severely mentally ill, community mental healthcare, and the services of certain non-physician providers. The plan does not cover substance abuse services, which are provided under the fee-for-service portion of the Medicaid benefit.

1915(b) waiver program None

1115 waiver program Hawaii QUEST

Under Hawaii QUEST, all AFDC/TANF beneficiaries, state general assistance beneficiaries, and uninsured individuals with incomes at or below 300% of the federal poverty level receive services through one of five managed care organizations contracting with the state. Other eligible populations (including those receiving SSI or Social Security disability benefits, and Medicare beneficiaries below the federal poverty level) receive services on a fee-for-service basis from the state's Medicaid department.

Hawaii QUEST managed care plans provide some mental health and substance abuse services to plan enrollees, including inpatient care, crisis services, day treatment, and individual and group therapy. Those beneficiaries determined by the Med-QUEST Division (within the state's Department of Human Services) to be seriously mentally ill/seriously emotionally disturbed are referred to one of two managed behavioral healthcare organizations for further mental health care.

IDAHO

1915(b) waiver program Healthy Connections

Idaho's Healthy Connections program, currently implemented in 26 counties, covers physical health services only. Behavioral health services remain under the state's fee-for-service program, and are available to Healthy Connections enrollees upon referral from a primary care provider.

1915(b) waiver program None

1115 waiver program MediPlan Plus

Illinois' MediPlan Plus program operates statewide for AFDC/TANF and aged, blind and disabled clients, as well as children who are wards of the Department of Children and Family Services. The program covers only a few behavioral health services, including pharmaceutical drugs prescribed by a psychiatrist, and psychiatric treatment or psychosocial rehabilitation services which are ancillary to the treatment of a physical health diagnosis. All other mental health and substance abuse services are provided in the fee-for-service portion of the Medicaid program.

INDIANA

1915(b) waiver program Hoosier Healthwise

Hoosier Healthwise is a primary care case management/managed care program for physical health services, and covers all AFDC/TANF and related beneficiaries in the state. Behavioral health services are provided through the traditional fee-for-service system, and can be accessed by Medicaid beneficiaries through self-referral.

1115 waiver program None

IOWA

1915(b) waiver program Mental Health Access Plan (MHAP)

Iowa Managed Substance Abuse Care Plan (IMSACP)

Managed HealthCare (formerly MediPass)

The Managed HealthCare program, operating statewide for certain AFDC/TANF and related eligibles, covers general medical/surgical care only. Beneficiaries are enrolled in either a primary care case management program or an HMO.

Under the Mental Health Access Plan, all Medicaid beneficiaries in the state (with the exception of those over 65, some medically needy beneficiaries, those in Psychiatric Medical Institutions for Children, and those in intermediate care facilities for the mentally retarded) receive mental health services under a carve-out arrangement. The benefits provided under the carve-out are extensive, and include inpatient and outpatient care, partial hospitalization, day treatment, targeted case management, sub-acute care, mobile crisis, mobile counseling, respite services, community support programs, assertive community treatment, and intensive outpatient care. Currently, the state contracts with a single managed behavioral healthcare organization for provision of covered services

The Iowa Managed Substance Abuse Care Plan provides comprehensive substance abuse treatment services ranging from inpatient and medically monitored residential care to extended outpatient services and methadone treatment. The program is statewide, covering virtually all Medicaid beneficiaries, including AFDC/TANF/general assistance and related eligibles, SSI and SSI-related eligibles under the age of 65, and medically needy populations. The state has contracted with a not-for-profit agency to implement the program; the non-profit has in turn contracted with a managed care organization for provision of clinical and administrative services.

KANSAS

1915(b) waiver program

HealthConnect Kansas
PrimeCare Kansas

HealthConnect Kansas is a primary care case management program, currently implemented in 39 counties, covering all TANF, SSI, general assistance, and poverty-level eligible beneficiaries. In general, behavioral health services are accessible only through referral from the primary care provider; services provided through a community mental health center do not require referral.

PrimeCare Kansas requires TANF and poverty level eligibles to enroll in an HMO in those areas where an HMO is available. Mental health and substance abuse services are not included in the benefit package, and are provided through the fee-for-service Medicaid system.

KENTUCKY

1915(b) waiver program Kentucky ACCESS

Kentucky ACCESS is a managed behavioral healthcare carve-out program, covering all AFDC/TANF and related eligibles, SSI, and medically needy beneficiaries. The program, which is just getting underway, will be implemented statewide. Under the plan, the state is divided into eight geographic regions. Within each region, the state's Department of Medicaid Services and Department for Mental Health and Mental Retardation Services will jointly contract with either a single behavioral healthcare partnership for provision of services, or with managed behavioral healthcare organizations.

Services covered under the program include inpatient and outpatient services, targeted case management (for adults/ children with serious mental illnesses/serious emotional disorders), therapeutic rehabilitation, non-emergency mental health related transportation, and home health. All willing providers who meet the provider network's standards may contract to provide services to beneficiaries enrolled in Kentucky ACCESS plans.

1115 waiver program Kentucky Healthcare Partnership Plan (KHPP)

As described for Kentucky ACCESS, the Kentucky Healthcare Partnership Plan divides the state into eight separate "Partnership" regions, within which the state will contract with managed care organizations or with a single regional health partnership for the provision of services to program enrollees. The program covers only physical health services; behavioral health services are provided under Kentucky ACCESS.

LOUISIANA

1915(b) waiver program Community CARE

Community CARE is a primary care case management program, operating in twenty rural parishes. The program is mandatory for AFDC/TANF and SSI eligibles. Mental health and substance abuse services do not require prior physician referral, and are provided under the fee-for-service system.

1115 waiver program Louisiana Health Access (LHA)

LHA is a fully capitated managed care program, which is expected to be in place throughout the state within roughly three years. Behavioral health services will remain under the fee-for-service Medicaid program.

MAINE

1915(b) waiver program Medicaid Managed Care Initiative (MMCI)

This program, currently being implemented, will enroll AFDC/TANF and related eligibles in a managed care plan. Behavioral health services will be excluded from the program, and will remain covered in the fee-for-service system. Ultimately, the state plans to integrate behavioral health services into the waiver program.

MARYLAND

1915(b) waiver program None

1115 waiver program Maryland Medicaid Reform Proposal (MMRP)

Maryland has established a mandatory HMO enrollment program, in operation statewide. Most Medicaid eligible populations are included in the program, with the exception of Medicare-Medicaid dual eligibles and institutionalized populations. Physical health, substance abuse, and primary mental health services are covered under the state's contracts with HMO's, Federally Qualified Health Centers (FQHCs) and Maryland Qualified Health Centers (MQHCs). Primary mental health services include clinical evaluation and assessement, and services/referrals provided by a primary care provider.

All other mental health services are provided by the Specialty Mental Health System (SMHS), under which the state's Mental Health Administration has contracted with a managed behavioral healthcare organization to credential providers and perform utilization review and other administrative services. Upon referral from the enrollee's HMO (and with the authorization of the managed behavioral healthcare organization), specialty mental health services are provided on a fee-for-services basis by a core service agency in the enrollee's locale. The core service agencies contract with individual providers.

MASSACHUSETTS

1915(b) waiver program MassHealth Managed Care (MHMC)

MHMC is a statewide program covering all AFDC/TANF and SSI eligible beneficiaries, as well as individuals under 65 who are not in institutions, and who have no other third party health insurance coverage. Under the program, beneficiaries are required to enroll in either an HMO or a primary care clinician program. Those enrolling in an HMO receive their mental health and substance abuse care through the HMO; those enrolling in the primary care clinician program receive their mental health and substance abuse services from a separate managed behavioral healthcare organization through a carve-out program.

1115 waiver program MassHealth

MassHealth, which is currently in the implementation stage, will cover AFDC/TANF and SSI eligibles, individuals at or below 133% of the Federal poverty level who are long-term unemployed and are not eligible for Medicaid, those receiving unemployment benefits, and disabled adults and children who are not eligible for Medicaid. Under MassHealth, the benefit package will be integrated, including physical health, substance abuse, and mental health services. Beneficiary services will be provided through HMOs under contract with the state. The existing 1915(b) waiver program will be incorporated into MassHealth.

MICHIGAN

1915(b) waiver programs Medicaid Comprehensive Health Plan

This program is currently being implemented in five counties, and will soon be expanded statewide. Under the program, all AFDC/TANF and SSI recipients are required to enroll in an HMO for needed services. Plans are responsible for only limited outpatient mental health services and for substance abuse services. Other services will be carved out, and provided by Community Mental Health Services Programs (local public entities) on a capitated basis.

MINNESOTA

1915(b) waiver program Consolidated Chemical Dependency Treatment Fund

This statewide program covers substance abuse treatment services for three different groups of beneficiaries. The array of services covered is broad, and includes outpatient and extended rehabilitative programs, residential services, inpatient and outpatient care, treatment in halfway houses, and transportation. Low income individuals who qualify for Medicaid—referred to as Tier 1 beneficiaries for purposes of the program—are entitled to coverage under the program. Support for Tier 2 and Tier 3 populations is dependent on the state's appropriation for the program. Tier 2 persons are defined as those with incomes above Tier 1 levels and below 60% of the state median income. Tier 3 persons are defined as those with below-to-average incomes, earning 60-115% of the state median income.

Under the Consolidated Chemical Dependency Treatment Fund, all substance abuse service funding—including state funds, federal block grants, and Medicaid—are consolidated into one pool by the state Department of Health Services. Funds are then allocated to counties and Indian reservations under a formula. These entities manage the delivery of substance abuse service, which are generally provided on a fee-for-service basis.

1115 waiver program Prepaid Medical Assistance Program (PMAP)
MinnesotaCare

The PMAP program is a mandatory PHP (prepaid health plan) enrollment program operating in 17 counties, and projected to be implemented statewide by 1999. The program applies to AFDC/TANF and general assistance eligibles, and generally covers acute care services but not long-term or continuing care services. In the area of mental health, the benefit package includes inpatient hospital, clinic services, non-physician providers, personal care, day treatment, specialized services for children with severe emotional disturbance, and home-based services. Only primary care chemical dependency services are covered, with other substance abuse services provided under the 1915(b) waiver program. Prepaid health plans may subcontract with other entities for provision of services.

MinnesotaCare covers acute care medical services and some behavioral health services for pregnant women and children up to 275% of poverty, and childless adults up to 175% of the poverty level. Covered services in the area of behavioral health are the same as under the Prepaid Medical Assistance Program. Minnesota plans to integrate the PMAP and MinnesotaCare programs.

MISSOURI

1915(b) waiver program Managed Care+

Managed Care+ has been implemented in four areas of the state, including the St. Louis and Kansas City areas, and the northwest and central regions of the state. The program requires AFDC/TANF eligibles and pregnant women and children to enroll in an HMO, which is responsible for general healthcare services and for some behavioral health services. Managed Care+ plans typically subcontract the provision of mental health services out to managed behavioral healthcare organizations. Covered mental health services include 30 inpatient hospital days and 20 outpatient hospital visits per year (these limits do not apply to children under 21), and medically necessary psychology and counseling services. EPSDT services related to mental health care are also the responsibility of Managed Care+ plans. Covered substance abuse services for children include inpatient detoxification and outpatient services.

Substance abuse services for adults are carved out and provided under the Comprehensive Substance Treatment and Rehabilitation (CSTAR) Managed Care Program. CSTAR is just being implemented, and covers both Medicaid and non-Medicaid eligible persons. Services are provided through a managed care system established within the state's Division of Alcohol and Drug Abuse, and include inpatient and outpatient services, and rehabilitation services such as skill-building and education programs, case management, and residential rehabilitation.

MONTANA

1915(b) waiver program Mental Health Access Plan (MHAP)

This program serves as a mental health carve out program for all Medicaid beneficiaries in the state. The program also covers non-Medicaid eligibles whose families live at or below 200% of the federal poverty level. Montana has combined its Medicaid mental health services delivery system with other state mental health funding into one program; all public sector mental health services have been completely privatized. MHAP covers an exhaustive array of services, which are provided under a full-risk contract between the state and a joint venture between a private for-profit managed care organization and a coalition of mental health providers known as Montana Community Partners (MCP).

Substance abuse services are not included in MHAP, and remain under the fee-for-service Medicaid program.

Nebraska Primary Care Physician Program (PCCP)

Nebraska's 1915(b) waiver programs divide behavioral health services from physical health services. Under PCCP, AFDC/TANF and SSI eligible Medicaid recipients across the state receive their physical health services through a capitated health plan.

The behavioral health carve out under the other 1915(b) waiver covers inpatient and outpatient care (in a variety of settings), day treatment, and a range of community-based services for clients under age 20. Substance abuse services are not covered for clients over the age of 20. Behavioral health services are contracted out to a single for-profit managed behavioral healthcare organization, which is at full financial risk.

New York's 1915(c) waiver program provides add-on services such as individual care coordination, intensive in-home services, respite care, and family support services for seriously emotionally disturbed children in six pilot counties and in New York City who are at risk of institutionalization.

1115 waiver program None

New York has submitted a waiver application to HCFA to establish the Partnership Plan. If approved, the plan would provide physical health and some behavioral health services to Medicaid beneficiaries through private, for-profit managed care organizations. Plans would be responsible for inpatient and outpatient clinic visits, and would receive additional reimbursement from the state for medically necessary care provided beyond 20 outpatient visits and 30 inpatient days. Community-based services such as partial hospitalization programs are to be provided on a fee-for-service basis. Adults and children with serious emotional illnesses will receive services through Mental Health Special Needs Plans, providing wrap-around services. Basic substance abuse services will be covered through the managed care organization, with extended services available through New York's Office of Alcoholism and Substance Abuse Services.

NORTH CAROLINA

1915(b) waiver program Carolina Alternatives

Carolina Alternatives covers behavioral health services for children 18 and younger in ten pilot sites. For mental health, North Carolina's Medicaid program covers inpatient and outpatient care, clinic services, partial hospitalization, psychosocial rehabilitation, and case management. Covered substance abuse services include detoxification, opioid maintenance therapy, outpatient services, partial hospitalization, assertive community treatment, and high risk intervention services. Carolina Alternatives covers these behavioral health services for program enrollees, as well as high risk intervention services for children with serious emotional disturbances. The state Division of Medical Assistance, in coordination with the Division of Mental Health, Developmental Disabilities, and Substance Abuse Services, contracts with qualified area service programs for management of services.

1115 waiver program OhioCare

OhioCare is a mandatory managed care enrollment program operating in most urban counties, which covers almost all Medicaid beneficiaries. Ohio plans to implement a carve-out arrangement for coverage of all behavioral health services under the program. The state had decided to contract with a single managed behavioral healthcare organization for this, but the contract was overturned due to a court challenge. Once up and running, the carve-out will cover mental health and substance abuse services including acute inpatient care, acute care alternatives (for individuals who would otherwise need acute inpatient care), and outpatient services.

OKLAHOMA

1915(b) waiver program None

1115 waiver program Sooner Care

Oklahoma's Medicaid department contracts with five managed care organizations to provide health services to the Medicaid population under the state's 1115 waiver. The program encompasses both a capitated managed care plan (known as "SoonerCare Plus") and a primary care physician case manager program (known as "SonnerCare Choice"). SoonerCare Plus is in operation in Oklahoma City, Tulsa, Lawton, and adjacent areas, and SoonerCare Choice is in operation in the rest of the state. Enrollment in these programs is mandatory for AFDC/TANF and related eligibles.

SoonerCare Plus mental health services coverage varies depending on the enrollee's condition. The basic benefit package provides inpatient acute care and outpatient services, day treatment, and crisis intervention. For seriously mentally ill (SMI) adults and children with severe emotional disorders (SED), plans must provide intensive outpatient services, home-based services, and rehabilitatitive services. Those beneficiaries diagnosed with SMI/SED may choose to receive services through the fee-for-service Medicaid system.

Substance abuse service coverage is the same for both SMI/SED and non-SMI/SED populations. Covered services, which are provided on a fee-for-service basis, include outpatient care, detoxification, residential and day treatment

Beneficiaries covered under the SoonerCare Choice program receive both mental health and substance abuse services on a fee-for-service basis.

OREGON

1915(b) waiver program Oregon Mental Health Services

Oregon's 1915(b) waiver program delivers mental health services to Medicaid eligible children in Multnomah County on a capitated basis. The Multnomah County Community and Family Services Division contracts with the state as a mental health organization. Providers are paid on a fee-for-service basis.

1115 waiver program Oregon Health Plan Medicaid Demonstration

Oregon's 1115 waiver program is somewhat complex. The state has developed a prioritized list of services covered by the Oregon Health Plan, and eligibility for the plan has been expanded beyond the traditional Medicaid population. Currently, about 80% or more of the state's Health Plan enrollees receive services through a managed care organization, or Prepaid Health Plan (PHP) of some sort. Enrollees in areas where PHPs are unavailable receive services through primary care case managers. Substance abuse services are covered along with physical health services in the standard benefit package provided by the prepaid health plans contracting with the state.

In 20 out of the state's 36 counties—including the majority of counties east of the Cascade Mountains, and Benton, Clackamas, Washington, Josephine, and Coos counties—mental health services are provided under a carve-out contract. Mental health services in the eastern region are contracted out to Greater Oregon Behavioral Health, Inc., which subcontracts with the various county mental health agencies in the region for provision of services. In Josephine, Coos, and Clackamas counties, provision of mental health services is contracted out directly to each county's mental health agency. Until carve-out programs are established in the remaining counties, mental health services are provided on a fee-for-service basis.

PENNSYLVANIA

1915(b) waiver program HealthChoices Behavioral Health Services (HCBHS) HealthChoices 96

Under HCBHS, behavioral health services are carved-out and delivered on a capitated basis for all Medicaid beneficiaries in five southeast counties: Philadelphia, Bucks, Chester, Delaware, and Montgomery Counties. Four of the counties have contracted with a private for-profit managed behavioral healthcare organization for provision of services. The services covered under the waiver program include all those covered under the fee-for-service Medicaid system. For mental health care, this includes inpatient and outpatient clinic care, partial hospitalization programs, targeted case management, and expanded services for children and adolescents such as rehabilitation services, family-based services, and residential treatment. Covered substance abuse services include detoxification, and inpatient and outpatient rehabilitation services.

HealthChoices 96 is an HMO-enrollment program, operating in the same counties as HealthChoices Behavioral Health Services. Only physical health services are covered under the program.

RIte Care

Under RIte Care, AFDC/TANF eligible beneficiaries and certain other low-income women and children throughout the state are required to enroll in managed care plans, which are paid on a capitated basis. Some behavioral health services are covered under this benefit. These include inpatient and outpatient care for both mental health and substance abuse disorders, day treatment, and partial hospitalization services.

Adults determined to be seriously and persistently mentally ill (SPMI) and children determined to be severely emotionally disturbed (SED) have their mental health treatment carved-out and paid for under the Medicaid fee-for-service program. These individuals are eligible for additional services, including individual, group, and family therapy; acute inpatient care; community services; and crisis intervention.

SOUTH CAROLINA

1915(b) waiver program

1115 waiver program None

Although South Carolina has no waiver program applications pending, the state does operate a voluntary HMO program and a primary care provider program on a pilot basis.

SOUTH DAKOTA

1915(b) waiver program South Dakota Provider and Recipient in Medicaid Efficiency (PRIME)

South Dakota operates a statewide primary care case management program (PCCM), which is mandatory for AFDC/TANF and SSI eligibles, as well as low income children and pregnant women. Both physical and behavioral health services are provided on a fee-for-service basis. A referral is required for mental health services, except for specialty mental health services for children with serious emotional disturbances (SED) or adults with serious mental illness (SMI).

TENNESSEE

1915(b) waiver program None

1115 waiver program TennCare, TennCare Partners

TennCare is a statewide mandatory managed care enrollment program covering all Medicaid beneficiaries in the state, as well as certain low income uninsured individuals who are ineligible for Medicaid. TennCare covers physical and behavioral health services, but behavioral health services are carved out under the TennCare Partners waiver program. However, the state is planning to fully reintegrate behavioral health services into the TennCare program within the next year.

Mental health and substance abuse services are provided through capitated contracts with two private for-profit managed behavioral healthcare organizations. Covered services include inpatient and outpatient treatment for substance abuse disorders, and inpatient and outpatient care, transportation to covered mental health services, case management, crisis services, and psychiatric rehabilitation for those needing mental health care. Expanded coverage, including removal of certain treatment limits, is available through EPSDT coverage, to adults with serious mental illness (SMI) and to children with a serious emotional disturbance (SED).

TEXAS

1915(b) waiver programs State of Texas Access Reform (STAR) Health Plan STAR+PLUS

The STAR Health Plan is an HMO/primary care case management program operating in Travis, Bexar, Lubbock, Tarrant, and Harris counties and their contiguous areas. The program is mandatory for AFDC/TANF and related eligibles. The benefit package provided includes both physical and behavioral health services. Mental health services covered under the STAR Health Plan include inpatient hospital care and outpatient treatment (generally limited to 30 sessions per year). STAR Health Plan HMOs can provide additional services such as day treatment and partial hospitalization if they so choose. Children under the age of 21 are also covered for substance abuse treatment services. The Texas Department of Health contracts with HMOs on a capitated basis for covered services.

The STAR+PLUS health plan is a capitated HMO program scheduled to begin operation in December of 1997, only in Harris County. The program applies to both AFDC/TANF and SSI eligibles, and covers both acute care and long term care services, including behavioral healthcare services. Texas contracts with an HMO for services, which in turn contracts with a managed behavioral healthcare organization to provide behavioral health services.

1115 waiver program None

Texas has submitted an 1115 waiver application to implement the STAR program statewide for all Medicaid beneficiaries, and to provide Medicaid benefits to certain low-income uninsured individuals not currently eligible for Medicaid coverage.

UTAH

1915(b) waiver program Prepaid Mental Health Plan

The Prepaid Mental Health Plan is a mental health carve-out program operating in 25 out of the state's 29 counties. As its name implies, the plan covers only mental health services, for all Medicaid eligibles within the areas of operation. Covered services include inpatient and outpatient services, individual and group therapy, skills development services, and targeted case management for the chronically mentally ill. These services are provided through eight community mental health centers under a capitated contract with the state. Substance abuse services remain covered under the fee-for-service Medicaid system.

1115 waiver program None

Utah has submitted an 1115 waiver application to implement a mandatory managed care enrollment program, and to expand coverage to more low-income individuals in the state. If approved, mental health services will remain carved-out under the Prepaid Mental Health Plan.

VERMONT

1115 waiver program Vermont Health Access Plan

The Vermont Health Access Plan is a statewide, mandatory managed care enrollment program, covering AFDC/TANF and related eligibles. Individuals eligible through SSI will begin being phased into the program by the end of the year. The Vermont Health Access Plan covers physical and behavioral health services which are acute or short-term in nature. This includes inpatient and outpatient care, individual and group counseling and psychotherapy, and residential and outpatient substance abuse services. Those with serious mental illnesses receive long term benefits through the public mental health system. Vermont contracts with two managed care firms for provision of services; both firms subcontract out the provision of behavioral health services to other entities.

VIRGINIA

1915(b) waiver program Medallion II

Medallion II is a statewide mandatory managed care enrollment program, for AFDC/TANF and SSI beneficiaries. The state contracts with HMOs for provision of services, including physical and mental health services. Covered mental health services include inpatient and outpatient care, with psychiatric rehabilitation, case management, and residential treatment available through community services boards under the fee-for-service program. Expanded services are available to children under the EPSDT program. Substance abuse services are covered only for pregnant women and adults with dependent children, and are limited to residential and day treatment services.

WASHINGTON

1915(b) waiver programs Coordinated Community Mental Health Plan Healthy Options

Washington's Coordinated Community Mental Health Plan is a carve-out for outpatient mental health services only, covering all Medicaid beneficiaries with the exception of those in state-owned institutions. The plan operates statewide, under capitation arrangements between the state Mental Health Division and regionally-organized prepaid health plans. Covered services include crisis and stabilization services, assessments and evaluations, group services, day treatment, family therapy, and intensive community support services for clients with special needs.

Health Options is a statewide managed care program covering physical health services only for AFDC/TANF eligibles, to be expanded to cover SSI and SSI-related beneficiaries.

The state has submitted a waiver application to establish an Integrated Community Mental Health Program. This program—to be set up on a statewide basis for AFDC/TANF, SSI and SSI related, and medically needy eligibles—will expand the scope of services covered under the state's existing mental health program to include community psychiatric inpatient care.

Substance abuse services are provided through the fee-for-service system, and are managed by the state's Division of Alcohol and Substance Abuse.

1115 waiver program None

WEST VIRGINIA

1915(b) waiver program Mountain Health Trust

The Mountain Health Trust program does not cover behavioral health services, which remain under the fee-for-service Medicaid system.

1115 waiver program None

Although not a waiver program, West Virginia is implementing a program known as the New Directions in Medicaid Services Initiative. This program is aimed at gathering information regarding service use, with the goal of improving the targeting of services, so that the level of service provided matches the level of need. Ultimately, the program will establish utilization review and prior authorization standards.

WISCONSIN

1915(b) waiver programs Medicaid HMO Program
Primary Provider Program

Wisconsin's Medicaid HMO program is mandatory for AFDC/TANF eligibles throughout the state. Managed care plans under this program are responsible for both physical and behavioral health services. Covered behavioral health services are the same as under the fee-for-service program, and include inpatient hospital and clinic services, targeted case management, and outpatient services provided by some non-physician providers. Partial hospitalization, crisis intervention, and community support programs are available to children and youth under 21.

1115 waiver program None

Wisconsin operates voluntary managed care programs for Medicaid beneficiaries. Among these are a primary provider program covering physical and behavioral health services for SSI eligibles and a program covering wrap-around services in Milwaukee County, and a program in Dane County covering all necessary behavioral health services for children.
